To the Editors:

Barrington Moore has done a real service by treating the possibility of revolution in America not as a slogan but as a subject for historical analysis. He has failed, however, to deal with the basic argument of those who see revolution as a real historical possibility.

1) No sensible observer argues that revolution in America is at hand, for precisely the reasons Moore spells out: essentially, the rulers are still able to run society and the ruled have not become desperate enough simply to ignore their authority. Those who believe revolution possible do argue that America's rulers are faced with a series of objective problems with which they seem unable to cope -- problems which, if they persist, will lead to both a weakening of their power and an increase of mass discontent.

a) The United States has built its economy on world dominance through alliances and interventions which now appear to be beyond its resources to maintain.

If it continues to defend this empire, it is faced with all the economic and other problems that have become evident during the Vietnam war. If it allows the empire to dissolve, it is faced with a domino effect that would have major repercussions on the domestic economy. At present, the ruling groups appear unwilling to extricate themselves from this dilemma by following either course vigorously.

b) America's post-war prosperity has depended on its domination of the capitalist economies of Europe, and the consequent suppression of inter-capitalist economic rivalry. The international monetary crises of the past two years are essentially a manifestation of the underlying fact that this imposed unity is now breaking up. Each monetary crisis has been accompanied by dire warnings from the authorities that disunity will lead to economic disaster. There is reason to expect that international competition will increasingly undermine the controlled economy which has circumvented depression in the U.S. for the past 25 years.

c) With the concentration of black people in the inner city, the system has put an impoverished and rebellious group in a strategic location. Its efforts to ameliorate the conditions of this group have been blocked by veto power over social legislation held by small-property and Dixiecrat representatives in the Congress, and by the fact that social investment in the not-for-profit sector reduces the effective demand available to private industry -- refrigerators and helicopters are profitable for industry, but the poverty program isn't. The demand for the former is the keystone to our general economic prosperity.

d) Finally there is the less definable but equally important crisis of legitimate authority. The official management of the large institutions of the society are increasingly viewed not as the necessary organizers of society, but as a superfluous and irrational 'they'. This has been especially evident with regard to the Presidency under Lyndon Johnson and the university administrations under student attack.

Whether revolution is possible depends on whether the present rulers are able to resolve these problems. The reason revolution has begun to seem a real possibility to some people is the evidence that they cannot. First, the rulers seem to be hopelessly out of touch with reality; it was their star genius, Robert McNamara, who was the key architect of the Vietnam disaster and it was their great political mediator, Lyndon Johnson, who undermined the 20-year-old cold-war unity of the country. Second, the ruling class seems to be unable to pull itself together and follow a coherent class policy to meet the problems it confronts. Business failed to develop a program for solving the American problem in Vietnam long after it was clear to business leaders themselves that the war was both a military disaster and a threat to the international monetary system. Nor has business developed effective support for such class-conscious efforts to deal with the race crisis as the Urban Coalition.

Of course, the ineffectiveness of ruling class response to these objective problems has not forced a revolutionary crisis on the system yet. But if the problems grow worse and worse, eventually it will. On this question -- the really critical one for determining whether revolution is a real possibility -- Moore says only "In my judgment the system has considerable flexibility and room for maneuver, including strategic retreat."

2) Moore notes the absence in the United States of the traditional revolutionary lower-class base. But he appears to assume without arguing that any deviation from the class configuration which obtained in previous revolutions makes revolution less likely. Those who believe in the possibility of revolution in the United States point out a number of unique aspects of the American class situation which, they argue, make revolution more not less likely.

a) The traditional middle class of businessmen and farmers which has always been the basic mass constituency for the rulers of capitalist society has now become a tiny minority within American society. The overwhelming majority of the society has become proletarianized in the sense that it does not own the means of production but works for others who do.

b) The centralization of poor and impoverished blacks in the central city leads to an extreme vulnerability of the country to direct disruption, through strikes which hit the public services, sabotage to power, water, gas, transport etc., and through other forms of mass action.

c) The rise of a militant movement of educated youth adds a new historical factor which in a number of situations has already played a catalytic role.

d) The industrial working class in the United States has reached a uniquely high standard of consumption, while at the same time retaining much of the insecurity and job oppression to which this class has been traditionally subject. In the event of economic dislocation and mass unemployment, this class would be subject to extreme drops in living standards due to foreclosures on mortgages, car loans, etc. Its political behavior in such circumstances is unpredictable to say the least. ~~It~~ It is the significance of these unique factors which will determine whether revolution is possible in the American future.

3) Moore's comments on the dangers of radical revolution presumably are directed toward the New Left, since they are virtually the only people around advocating revolution these days. The New Left has been warned so frequently against the dangers of totalitarianism which lurk in revolution that it hardly bothers any more to make reply, assuming perhaps too facilely that such warnings are motivated more by a fear of change itself than a fear of totalitarianism. Professor Moore, however, certainly does not need to prove his credentials as an opponent of the status quo, and the New Left should therefore feel obliged to respond to his warning.

a) Moore suggests that "a revolutionary takeover in quasi-Leninist fashion by some tiny but resolute minority" is what "a segment of young American radicals apparently seeks...." Yet anyone familiar with the American New Left knows that it started out with a specific critique and rejection of this concept of revolution, and that organizations which espouse such a view, such as the Progressive Labor Party, have been continuously criticized by the New Left for their approach, which has won little support among young radicals. CA

b) Moore argues that "a revolution that tries to remold society against the mores and folkways of the mass of the population must turn to terror and propaganda on a gigantic scale in order to stay in control." It is true that if the revolutionary forces outlawed ham sandwiches and popcorn in movie theaters it would lose favor with the population and might have to resort to terror. But it is difficult to see why a revolution which ended conscription and war taxes, let the workers run their own factories, built decent housing for everyone to live in, and reduced the work week would need to oppress the population.

c) As always, the final argument against revolution is to point to the horrors of the Russian experience. Moore himself recognizes that Russia was a primitive country with no tradition of popular self-rule whose masses were unable to organize the economy -- but he does not draw the obvious conclusion that entirely different conditions would obtain in an advanced country with a tradition of self-rule like the United States.

d) It is true that revolutionary movements tend toward a centralized authoritarianism when they have no alternative program for organizing society. This is as true for the liberal revolutions Moore defends as the radical revolutions he criticizes -- the English revolution ended with the dictatorship of Cromwell and the French revolution with that of Napoleon. The New Left has put forward participatory democracy as its program precisely because it recognizes that both the revolutionary party and the revolutionary state tend toward authoritarianism. The critics are right in maintaining that the New Left has failed to spell out its concept of how a society based on participation instead of authority would work. But which of them has contributed more to a solution to this problem?

e) Within all recent revolutionary crises, organs for the direct self-government of the masses have developed. The Soviets in Russia; the Workers Councils in Germany, are classic examples. Whether a revolution results in authoritarian or democratic development, I would suggest, depends primarily on whether these organs and the masses they represent are strong enough to organize society under their own direction. If we don't want authoritarian development of revolutions, the way to combat such tendencies is not -- as Moore suggests -- by somehow incorporating elements of liberal revolution within radical revolution (whatever that means), but rather by seeking to strengthen the organs of self-government which revolutions engender.

If this is in fact the case, then one of Moore's own views would contribute greatly to authoritarian development. A revolutionary mass, he asserts, "cannot take power on its own. For a revolution to take place there must exist some group, such as the Russian Bolsheviks in 1917, that knows what it wants to accomplish and is willing to seize power in the midst of chaos and exercise it ruthlessly to restore order." It is precisely this argument which was used in an effort to justify the destruction of rule by the Soviets in Russia, and which the French Communists used against the workers councils that sprang up in the spring of 1968. While it may well have been true in the Russian context that direct self-government of the masses was impossible, to assert, as Moore seems to do, that this is true at all times and all places is simply to give the color of historical inevitability to authoritarian usurpation.

4) In discussing the possibility and desirability of revolution, Professor Moore neglects the most important question: is revolution necessary, not in the sense of inevitable but in the sense of needed? After all, those who advocate revolution do not do so out of an affection for violence, but rather out of a belief that human needs can be met in no other way. Essentially they argue revolution is necessary for these reasons:

a) It is the only way to overcome the overwhelming poverty of the underdeveloped world majority and of the poor within the United States -- a poverty perpetuated by the power of America's rulers.

b) It is the only way to end the domination of the everyday lives of ordinary people in all advanced societies by bureaucratic authoritarian structures.

c) It is the only way to prevent the eventual outbreak of nuclear war in defense of established interest of one or another great power -- or by accident.

Of course, if these are not the real needs faced by civilization, or if they can be fulfilled without revolutionary change, then revolution is unnecessary. Some of us who believe that it is necessary also believe that others can be as sensitive to their own and civilizations' needs as we are. "If we appear to seek the unattainable," as the Port Huron statement declared, "... then let it be known that we do so to avoid the unimaginable."

5) If read against the grain, Professor Moore's article suggests a number of points that those who support the idea of revolution must note.

a) The current radical forces -- essentially militant youth and blacks -- constitute far too narrow a social base for any successful revolution. Only at the point when large sections of the now-conservative population swing over to social opposition can revolution possibly succeed. This is particularly true since only at that point will it be possible to politically neutralize the instruments of violence. The statement of the French police that they would not fire on the workers in the upsurge last spring is an example of the kind of situation in which the overwhelming capacity for violence of the state begins to lose its effectiveness; this can only happen when the classes from which the army and police are drawn have swung against the status quo. Thus, it is essential in the long run that black and youth movements break out of their isolation and seek a broader constituency for change. Premature attempts at disruption lead to disaster.

b) The most devastating social splits tend to be over which social groups are to bear the costs of new social arrangements. Therefore, the key issue on which to split the ruling groups in our society and win the support of subordinate groups for opposition to the powers that be is the attempt to put the burden of paying for the social crisis on the backs of the lower strata of the population. This is also the only program which can reunite the poor and the working class. So far, the left has been very weak in developing an economic program which draws on this basic social conflict.

c) Radicals must recognize the great differences Moore points out between urban and peasant revolutions, and not assume that they can apply the concept of "liberated territories" with their independent economic, military, and geographical base to the "counter-communities" of an urban culture. Instead, they must look toward some equivalent of Rosa Luxemburg's idea of antagonistic engagement with the society -- a movement which builds on the friction generated at every point at which the needs of the people are attacked by the interests of the rich and powerful.

d) Much has been made of the overwhelming power of modern societies, but Moore's article makes clear the real point of their vulnerability -- a popular movement which gains control over essential community services. Moore may consider such action "the anarcho-syndicalist dream of the general strike and revolution" drawn from "the museum of social history," but such mass strikes have been the core of every Western revolutionary movement from 1905 to May, 1968. As Moore's argument indicates, the success of such a movement depends on whether the workers in essential services join it, and whether they participate in the democratic reorganization of the society.

Yours sincerely,

I. ORGANIZATIONAL DATA

A. Aims and Purposes

[Source AT T-1] ~~(S)~~ (U)

[Source advised on April 6, 1973] that the ISS in Atlanta, Georgia, is a group that works on research issues dealing with prisoners' rights, justice in trials, uniformity of sentencing of people convicted of crimes, and a union for prisoners. (U)

IPS also known as ISS

[AT T-2 advised in July, 1970,] ~~(S)~~ (U) that IPS had opened an office at 5 Forsyth Street, Atlanta, Georgia, and thereafter reported that IPS was allegedly studying the effects of war on the southern economy, that it was conducting research on war-related industries in the South and that its purpose was to identify war related industrial contractors in the Atlanta area to determine the part played by these contractors in what they termed the "military industrial complex". ~~(S)~~ (U)

[In February, 1970, this same source] ~~(S)~~ (U) reported that the Atlanta IPS was affiliated with the IPS headquartered in Washington, D. C., and in Atlanta the group was being referred to as the ISS. (U)

The IPS has been characterized in an article by EDITH KERMIT ROOSEVELT appearing on page 22 of the September 24, 1967, edition of a former Washington, D. C., weekly newspaper, "The Examiner." She stated in part that the IPS is a Washington based "Think Factory" which helped train extremists who incite violence in United States cities and whose educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation. Through its conferences and seminars, the IPS asserts a continuing influence on the ideology and tactics of the New Left. (U)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Students for a Democratic Society (SDS)~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

SDS was founded during June, 1962, at Port Huron, Michigan, and in the 1960s functioned as the leading New Left campus-based student organization in the United States. From an initial posture of "participatory democracy", SDS moved to a radical-revolutionary position, with debate centering on how best to create a revolutionary youth movement. Internal factionalism produced a split during the SDS National Convention in June, 1969, which resulted in the following three factions: Weatherman; Worker Student Alliance (WSA); and Revolutionary Youth Movement (RYM). The Weatherman and RYM are no longer affiliated with SDS. The WSA continues to use the name SDS and maintains its national headquarters in Chicago, Illinois. (u)

Weatherman

Weatherman, formerly a faction of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), controlled the SDS National Office from June, 1969, until its closing in February, 1970. Weatherman then entered an underground status and adopted a tactic of "strategic sabotage", with police and military installations designated as primary targets. (u)

Revolutionary Youth Movement (RYM)

RYM, a pro-Communist revolutionary youth organization, was organized in 1969, first as a faction within the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), then as a separate group with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia. RYM was unsuccessful in attracting support and by mid-1970, it was practically defunct. (u)

Worker Student Alliance (WSA)

Worker Student Alliance (WSA), a faction of SDS, was expelled from SDS in June, 1969, by the then dominant Weatherman faction, but continued to use the name SDS and opened an office in Cambridge, Massachusetts. WSA aligned ideologically with the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) and, in February, 1971, moved to Chicago, Illinois, where it opened the SDS National Office at 1225 South Wabash Street. (u)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~Progressive Labor Party (PLP)

The Progressive Labor Party (PLP) was founded in 1962 by individuals expelled from the Communist Party, USA, for following the Chinese Communist line. Its objective is the establishment of a militant working-class movement based on Marxism-Leninism and MAO Tse-tung thought. (u)

Over the past four years, the Institute has been advised on a number of occasions that it has been surveilled by federal and local law enforcement agencies including, but not limited to, electronic surveillance and breaking and entering. Up until recent months, we have declined to press the issue of violations of the civil rights of this organization and its members. Recent developments tend to indicate that refraining from bringing such indignities to the attention of the authorities is not consistent with Constitutional safeguards and is indeed harmful to law enforcement. (u)

We would appreciate it, therefore, if you cause an investigation to be conducted -- not simply into an alleged burglary -- but rather into what appears to be a pattern of illegal surveillance including illegal entry by law enforcement agencies. We would also appreciate information regarding any electronic surveillance. Such an investigation should also include any evidence of electronic surveillance of the Institute, its officers, or employees or those associated with the organization. (u)

Dear Mr. Rogovin:

This will reply to your letter of May 25, requesting that this department undertake an investigation of any evidence of electronic surveillance of The Institute for Policy Studies, its officers or employees or those associated with the organization. You also asked that we investigate an alleged pattern of illegal surveillance including illegal entry by federal and local law enforcement agencies.

At the outset I should make three points.

Firstly, as I am certain you know, surveillance is not criminally unlawful unless it involves such activities as unlawful entry or use of electronic devices without proper authority.

Secondly, a tentative inquiry of federal agencies has elicited a response that they, like this department, do not consider the activities of The Institute to be of sufficient significance to warrant any surveillance of that organization or its associates beyond cursory review of whatever its publications are publicly available.

Thirdly, because a variety of individuals and organizations for reasons sometimes justified and sometimes paranoid, suspect that they are subjected to illegal forms of surveillance, it is not the policy of this department to routinely investigate such suspicions without some concrete evidence of probable law violation. I make this point so you will understand that we will investigate any allegations which seem to have some concrete basis, but will not engage in extensive investigations of matters of mere suspicion. For these matters, or for such activities as electronic "cleansing" of premises, your clients will need to employ private investigative services. (u)

With those caveats, we will undertake an investigation of illegal surveillance of The Institute, beginning with the specific incident referred to in your letter. I assume that [redacted] will be available for interview in that connection. I have directed that this investigation begin without delay. (u)

For the broader investigation you have requested, I would appreciate your furnishing me reports of specific incidents, with as much detail as practical, which would indicate acts or patterns of illegal surveillance; these reports should include names of individuals who will be available for follow-up interviews and for court testimony, if needed. We also will need a listing of the officers, employees, or those associated with The Institute, including their office and residence addresses and office and residence telephone numbers. I will institute the broader investigation, as resources are available, following receipt of these materials. (u)

Dear [redacted]

In reply to your letter of June 21st, we have no printed material available for distribution on Prochek. It contains computerized data on known professional-type, recidivist, bad-check passers whose handiwork has been examined in the FBI Laboratory through the years. It is an internal computer system and actually is an adjunct of the National Fraudulent Check File which is a central repository for bad checks in the United States. Such checks are submitted by police agencies and the FBI to the FBI Laboratory for examination in connection with criminal investigations. (U)

The actual data encoded into Prochek is of a confidential nature. Since it is an internal FBI computer system, access to and utilization of this file are limited to personnel of the FBI Laboratory. (U)

IPS has been characterized in an article by EDITH KERMIT ROOSEVELT appearing on page 22 of the September 24, 1967, edition of a former WDC weekly newspaper, "The Examiner". She stated in part that the IPS is a Washington-based "Think Factory" which helped train extremists who incite violence in the United States (U.S.) cities and whose educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation. Through its conferences and seminars, the IPS asserts a continuing influence on the ideology and tactics of the New Left. (u)

IPS is self-described as a non-profit, non-taxable independent center for research education and social invention on public policy problems. (u)

The report is classified "~~Confidential~~" to protect WF T-1, WF T-17, and WF T-18 (S)(u)

In assessing this office's past and current investigative efforts regarding the Institute in light of reference Bureau letter, 4/19/73, three recent events appear critical. (u)

1) Referenced Report set forth considerable information indicating IPS operates in an aura of paranoia with regard to law enforcement organizations, particularly the FBI. Their hiring the services of a Washington, D.C. electronics store proprietor in 1971 to sweep IPS for bugs and taps, and their apparent practice of subjecting their employees and prospective fellows to polygraph examination tend to confirm (u) this supposition.

2) During the latter part of 1971, [redacted] attempted to obtain "all dossiers, reports, and information maintained by the Internal Security Division (USDJ) concerning his private, public and professional life....." This request was initiated with the aide of The American Civil Liberties Union, and was based on [redacted] unsubstantiated claim that the Internal Security Division had disseminated false information regarding [redacted] in the (u) past.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

3) During 1973, [redacted] IPS, initiated a civil rights complaint with the aid of WDC Attorney MITCHELL ROGOVIN alleging that federal and local law enforcement agencies had engaged in electronic surveillance, and breaking and entering upon the premises of IPS. Investigation by this office did not substantiate [redacted] allegations. (U)

b6

Coupled with this evidenced paranoia is the fact that most of the provocative information that was developed by this office regarding those areas of IPS activity contained in this communication was derived from [redacted] whose identity and limitations were set forth in WFO letter to Bureau, 9/15/72 (IPS caption). WFO feels it would be most unwise at this point in time to seriously consider instituting a similar operation as encompassed by the utilization of this source. Potential harm to the FBI and the Federal Government, per se, far outweigh the potential information that could be expected (U) from such a reinstated operation.

Obviously, a classically ambivalent situation presently confronts the FBI regarding the scope of additional investigation regarding the Institute. The development of information in this investigation which may indicate the violation of Federal laws by IPS in general, or by its principal leaders is most unlikely without the utilization of a full physical surveillance program, technical surveillance, trash cover, or live informant in place. None of these techniques is considered prudent or feasible at this time. (U)

During the next several months, WFO will direct the course of its investigation regarding the Institute toward the determination of whether IPS and its principal leaders are functioning in violation of Federal law. After this period, Washington Field will make a recommended assessment as to whether additional investigation is warranted, advising the Bureau accordingly. (U)

The representative of the FBI who telephonically contacted the WDC offices of CEC on 8/29/72 utilizing a no-name pretext was SA ROBERT W. FEUER. (U)

Reference is made to a memorandum dated October 17, 1973, from Mr. [redacted] Office of the former Deputy Attorney General, to Inspector [redacted] Office of Legal Counsel, FBI, wherein a status report was requested concerning an article by John Hanrahan, "Washington Post" staff writer, which appeared in the "Washington Post" on October 10, 1973. The story alleges that the FBI engaged in illegal activities against the IPS. (U)

For your background information, IPS was the subject of a preliminary inquiry by the FBI in November, 1968, after information was received indicating a possible connection between IPS and the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS). The investigation was expanded in 1971 after it was determined that IPS planned to embark on a five year plan for the radical reconstruction of American society and had circulated to radical groups around the country a document calling for brigades to descend on Washington, D. C., and close down Government agencies. The current investigation is directed toward those areas in which violations of Federal statutes may be developed in view of the activities of IPS personnel involving the Middle East and the Arabs, North and South Vietnam, Tanzania and the Pan-African Movement and contacts with subversive organizations and individuals in the United States. (U)

In May, 1973, Mitchell Rogovin, Counsel for IPS, requested Mr. William D. Ruckelshaus, then Acting Director of the FBI, to investigate alleged violations of the civil rights of IPS personnel in general and [redacted] in particular. In June, 1973, he also wrote to Assistant Attorney General J. Stanley Pottinger concerning the civil rights of IPS personnel. The allegations included illegal surveillances by Federal and local law enforcement including electronic [redacted]

[redacted] who is mentioned in the article, was a Special Agent of the FBI from May 10, 1965, to April 30, 1970, when he voluntarily resigned. Since his resignation he has been critical of the Bureau's investigative and personnel policies and has visited IPS and discussed his participation in FBI investigations in the New Left and racial fields. He has also made several allegations against the FBI in newspaper and magazine articles claiming the FBI was unnecessarily investigating organizations and individuals who had not committed crimes. [redacted]'s allegations that the FBI improperly secured bank records regarding IPS, that he himself initiated investigation of IPS and concluded there was nothing to investigate but that investigation of IPS continued and his description of that investigation have all been made before. Previous inquiries into [redacted]'s allegations disclosed they are inaccurate and there were no improprieties on the part of FBI Agents during the course of the investigation of IPS. (U)

Bureau airtel of 10/29/73 forwarded a copy of a memorandum from the Civil Rights Division (CRD) of the Department wherein the Bureau in question #2 was requested to "Provide a copy of all records and reports of the Washington Field Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation pertaining to the 'surveillance' of the Institute for Policy Studies (IPS) for the period January 1, 1971, to the present." I was informed by the Bureau that the word "surveillance" should be interpreted in the broadest possible sense so as to mean the equivalent of investigation. Under the circumstances, I found it desirable to have the WFO file reviewed for the purpose of composing a "damage assessment" potential should the Bureau decide to comply with the CRD's request.

WFO has conducted an examination of the 22 volume file on the IPS matter which consists of in excess of 1400 serials. This file contains raw investigative material which generally falls within the following categories: (u)

Identities of confidential sources which furnished banking information pertaining to IPS and its personnel. WFO, during a portion of the investigation, had access to the records of the [redacted] Leads were set out to many points in the United States of America to gather background data on banking correspondents. Thus, sources in banks other than [redacted] are identified in the file. (u) b7D

Classified material pertaining to representatives of foreign embassies. These individuals were either in contact with IPS or were of interest to FBI investigation of IPS. (u)

Stationary observation posts and physical surveillance techniques. With information that Weather fugitives visited IPS, WFO had in effect a stationary observation post on IPS for a period of several months. Additionally, surveillances were conducted on spot check basis over several years with (u) respect to New Left figures who frequented IPS.

Identities of live symbol and non-symbol informants who furnished data pertaining to IPS. (u)

Investigative results pertaining to other matters which were placed in the IPS file because of collateral interest, such as Elsur data. (u)

Results of Metropolitan Police Department investigations of IPS which were furnished to WFO in confidence. (u)

Confidential information furnished by the [redacted] b7D

[redacted] which were made available without the benefit of subpoena duces tecum. (u)

WFO 44-951

Material furnished by other Federal agencies such as the [] which falls under the "Third Agency Rule". (U) b7E

Material furnished the FBI by private industry and its reaction to requests of IPS concerning policies of private industry. This material was furnished the FBI in confidence. (U)

Information supplied by foreign intelligence agencies which was for FBI use only. (U)

Material relative to the security afforded IPS of its buildings and environment. (U)

Administrative correspondence between FBI Headquarters and WFO relating to specific investigative points. (U)

The foregoing was made available to SA ROBERT L. SHACKELFORD of the Bureau on 11/1/73. (U)

While advice has since been received from the Bureau that the CRD's original request with regard to paragraph #2 of its letter has been modified pending review in the Department of material furnished to it previously by the Bureau concerning IPS, I would like to make the following observations should the Department renew its request in anything like its original form. (U)

OBSERVATIONS:

The CRD has no greater right to review the Bureau's raw files than any other agency or division to which we disseminate information since, among other things, we have the obligation to protect the identity of sensitive sources and techniques which would be revealed. (U)

While the CRD may make any inquiry of the Bureau, it should be expected to accept the Bureau's parole concerning the lack of any illegality or impropriety by Bureau employees in connection with the IPS investigation. (U)

If an analogy may be drawn with Departmental requests regarding electronic surveillances (elsurs) with regard to evidentiary material in connection with criminal actions pending in Federal Court, it has been the Department's practice to merely request the Bureau to review its own files and, thereafter, to accept without question the Bureau's response. It is noted that in the IPS case there is no matter pending before the court. The CRD's request to, in effect, see the WFO raw file can only be interpreted as a disinclination to accept the results of the Bureau's own file review.

The Bureau has been placed in the position by CRD of attempting to establish a negative concept, that is the Bureau's non-involvement in any illegal activity, as a result of a communication directed to former Acting Director RUCKELSHAUS in May, 1973, by MITCHELL ROGOVIN of IPS, wherein ROGOVIN engaged in accusative speculation, approaching paranoia by way of imputation, of wrong doing to the Bureau without factual basis. Despite the lack of factual predication, the Bureau had WFO institute a most thorough review of files, interviews of investigative personnel, as well as the complainants, police officers, etc., and thereafter WFO submitted an extensive letterhead memorandum which should have set in proper perspective for any reasonable person the true facts surrounding the incident complained of by ROGOVIN.

Having bent over backwards, having "walked the extra mile" as it were, I feel it intolerable that the CRD should consider attempting to test the Bureau's credibility by a review of raw field office files instead of telling ROGOVIN to "put up or shut up" with regard to furnishing specifics. I am sure the Bureau also regards ROGOVIN's position as only a thinly veiled attempt to learn whatever the FBI knows concerning IPS.

If there was a single area of legitimate inquiry for ROGOVIN on behalf of IPS, it concerns the events of the evening of 5/24/73. That issue was met head-on in the most thorough manner. To permit ROGOVIN's paranoid suspicions of Bureau operations to be used as a predication for a CRD raid on Bureau files would be intolerable. CRD has permitted ROGOVIN to place this matter all out of perspective. If the Bureau were to be put through this exercise each time some malcontent vociferously expresses himself, we would have time for little else.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

Should the CRD renew its request to review WFO's raw file in this matter or, in any event, documents not originally intended or prepared for dissemination, that:

1. The Bureau decline to comply.
2. That the CRD be informed that the entire investigative file concerning the IPS in WFO has been reviewed and (not a single inkling of illegality or impropriety was detected; further, that SAC, WFO is prepared to make affidavit to this effect at such time as there is an action before the court, which is not now the case.
3. That the Bureau inform CRD that the Bureau stands prepared to respond to any and all legitimate inquiries of substance concerning the propriety of its operations.
4. That the Bureau expects the CRD in the future to insist upon receipt of more specifics from a complainant instead of placing the Bureau in a position of attempting to prove a negative concept.

IPS, which is mentioned in the article, was the subject of a preliminary inquiry by the FBI in 11/68 after information was received indicating a possible connection between IPS and SDS. The investigation was expanded in 1971 after it was determined that IPS planned to embark on a five year plan for the radical reconstruction of American society and had circulated to radical groups around the country a document calling for brigades to descend on Washington, D.C., and close down Government agencies. The current investigation of IPS is directed toward those areas in which violations of Federal statutes may be developed in view of the activities of IPS personnel involving the Middle East and the Arabs, North and South Vietnam, Tanzania and the Pan-African Movement and contacts with subversive organizations and individuals in the United States. ~~X~~ (U)

Re report of SA [redacted] 5/31/73, at Atlanta; and Bulet to Atlanta, 6/15/73. (u)

Referenced Atlanta report of 5/31/73, pointed out that ISS in Atlanta was affiliated with IPS in Washington, D.C., and that in the past ISS had been primarily involved in doing research and research papers on the military industrial complex in the South; also that as of the Spring of 1973, ISS was doing research on prison reform, prisoners' rights, court reform, justice in trials, a reform of the legal structure, uniformity of sentencing of people convicted of crimes and a union for prisoners. In addition, the report showed that ISS in Atlanta has no regular type meetings or affairs and most of its discussions were held at informal get-togethers. (u)

Referenced bulet of 6/15/73, pointed out that the Bureau had reviewed the above-mentioned report and the Bureau noted that this report set forth certain activities of the ISS, which did not appear to be revolutionary in nature and did not show evidence of possible violations of Federal statutes within the FBI's jurisdiction. (u)

Since the submission of referenced report on 5/31/73, ISS began issuing a quarterly publication called "Southern Exposure", which runs approximately 100 pages and, to date, two issues have been published. The Spring, 1973 issue was devoted to the theme "The Military and The South" and the articles appearing in this issue (u)

Re Bureau letter to WFO, 4/19/73; WFO report of SA [redacted] 8/23/73; and WFO airtel to Bureau, 11/16/73. (u)

WFO has reviewed the investigative efforts conducted to date concerning captioned organization and its principal leaders, and has come to the conclusion that a paucity of information exists that would support the likelihood of IPS or its leaders to be functioning in violation of Federal law. (u)

This, coupled with the following examples of IPS activity directed against the FBI and other law enforcement organizations has convinced this office that continued investigative efforts directed toward the Institute would be unlikely to develop further substantial information detailing subversion on the part of IPS, and could very likely again place the FBI into a position of attempting to prove a negative concept, i.e., the Bureau's non-involvement in any illegal activity directed against the Institute, that SAC, WFO specifically addressed himself to in referenced WFO airtel: (u)

1) WFO report of SA [redacted] 3/15/73, set forth considerable information indicating IPS operates in an aura of paranoia with regard to law enforcement organizations, particularly the FBI. Their hiring the services of a Washington, D. C. (WDC) electronics store proprietor in 1971 to sweep IPS for bugs and taps, and their apparent practice of subjecting their employees and prospective fellows to polygraph examination and to confirm this supposition. (u)

2) During the latter part of 1971, [redacted] at IPS, attempted to obtain "all dossiers, reports, and information maintained by the Internal Security Division (USDJ) concerning his private, public and professional life..." This request was initiated with the aid

Investigation by this office did not in any way substantiate [redacted] allegations. (u)

Referenced letter focused on several facets of activity of IPS and its personnel which the Bureau suggested may involve violations of Federal statutes. All of these areas having a domestic origin have been the subject of separate investigations by this office as follows: (u)

As the Bureau set forth in referenced letter, it is difficult to differentiate between legal and potentially illegal activities of IPS because of the interrelated structure of its programs, and the complexity of its funding, however, there does appear that many of the Institute's activities are in the gray area of propriety, or may even be proper. (U)

For this reason primarily, and for those reasons enumerated previously, WFO is discontinuing the investigation regarding the Institute at this time. Should information be developed by this office that suggests subversive and/or illegal involvement on the part of those organizations or individuals listed above, this information will be furnished to the Bureau under their specific organizational or individual title, and obviously, if future information comes to the attention of this office indicating an overall subversive and/or illegal activity on the part of IPS per se, the investigation re captioned organization will be re-opened at that time. In late 1971, a meeting was arranged at IPS for the Middle East Research and Information Project (MERIP). A staff member of the Project, [redacted] who later joined IPS, was a member of the delegation to the Second World Conference on Palestine held in Amman, Jordan, in mid-1970. prosecutable violations of statutes covering subversive activity. Further, additional investigation would likely lead to additional civil rights allegations, infra, being made against the FBI and its personnel which would again place the FBI in a position of attempting to prove no illegal activity was directed against IPS. In 5/73, IPS alleged a violation of the civil rights of some of its personnel. At the direction of the Civil Rights Division (CRD) of the Department, a civil rights investigation was conducted and no evidence of improper or illegal acts on the part of Bureau personnel was developed. The results of this investigation are presently under consideration by the CRD of the Department. (U)

On 2/20/74, IPS filed a civil complaint against John N. Mitchell and others, including present and former FBI personnel, alleging illegal interception of telephone calls of IPS personnel at IPS, breaking and entering and removal of documents from IPS. All of the allegations concerning FBI personnel are absolutely baseless and false and were resolved in the civil rights investigation, supra. Part of the allegations in the IPS complaint involve the "plumbers," the Washington, D.C., Police Department and other non-FBI individuals. We cannot, of course, answer for their activities. (U)

OBSERVATIONS:

INTD concurs with the decision of WFO to close the investigation of IPS based upon its conclusion that there is no current evidence that IPS is presently engaged in activities in violation of Federal statutes. INTD has noted that WFO advised that investigations of possible illegal activities of IPS personnel, such as the eight cases listed in WFO letter of 2/28/74, will be conducted in the individual cases and INTD concurs with this decision. Two of these cases are pending and six are closed. An up-to-date report concluding the investigation of IPS is being requested from WFO, which upon receipt will be disseminated to the Department. "A man who once had a place of honor in the office of Pres. Kennedy's National Security Council, Marcus Raskin, heads up IPS's Program 2, which at the moment is collecting information about the men who handle security for the nation's industrial plants. Raskin, another 'Liberal Papers' author, was one on 'Rampart' board of directors, and was an outspoken critic of the CIA and the National Security Agency and other intelligence organizations. In mid-August Raskin sent a letter to the public relations departments of 500 American companies, informing the PR men: 'I am doing a study of the problems of industrial security. As a starting point I would appreciate any written materials which you might have concerning this question including a biographical resume of the person or persons in charge of your security program. Thank you very much.' PR men habitually respond to such inquiries without asking questions themselves. Contacted by 'Combat', Raskin said he was doing the research for a book which would show 'the class background and educational background of the men who head various programs, who are part of the business elite.' He said one of his interests was to find out what happened to ex-military officers and ex-FBI agents. Most American firms will not conceal the background of their security managers, but when a man who in the past has attacked national security programs (e.g., nuclear testing, Skybolt missiles, etc.) tries to compile a filing cabinet of dossiers on the men who guard the country's industrial plants, security agents are suspicious. Not suspicious enough, though. Raskin told 'Combat' he has received more than 200 replies."

It is suggested that WFO attempt to establish a source in the offices of IPS to determine what companies replied to letter. ~~(S)~~ (U) private agency to undertake and stimulate research in all fields relevant to peace, security, disarmament and international order. Shortly afterward, it obtained a $20,000 contract for a study for the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

"Late in 1963, the Peace Research Institute (led by Arthur Irwin Waskow) merged with the Institute for Policy Studies, which had just been founded by Marcus Raskin and Richard Barnet, who once served as deputy director of political research for the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. Arthur Waskow then went to work for the IPS as its senior fellow."

(Article "Barron's" National Business and Financial Weekly entitled "Radical Think-Tank, the Institute for Policy Studies Aim to Disarm the United States," dated 10/6, 13/69)

In an article in the former Washington weekly newspaper, "The Examiner" dated September 24, 1967, page twenty-two, Edith Kermit Roosevelt described the IPS in part, as follows:

IPS is a Washington based Think Factory, which helped train extremists who incite violence in American cities. Educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation.

Through its conferences and seminars, the IPS exerts a continuing influence on the ideology and tactics of the New Left.

The IPS pamphlet entitled "The First Three Years" indicates the structure of the Institute to be as follows:

There are twenty-two individuals listed in the above-described pamphlet as being the Trustees of IPS, two individuals are listed as Co-directors and one individual as the Executive Officer. The Institute's faculty members are called Fellows, which are broken down into the subtitles of Resident Fellows, Visiting Fellows, and Associate Fellows.

A Resident Fellow is described as a permanent member of the Institute faculty.

A Visiting Fellow is a full-time faculty member for a limited period.

An Associate Fellow is considered to be a part-time faculty member who has led seminars on occasion, participated in social inventions, or has engaged in individual research projects supported by the Institute.

Note; Since the IPS pamphlet entitled "The First Three Years" appeared to be the only document published by the IPS, it is difficult to determine exactly who are their current officers, faculty and students.

Raskin is also credited in a Washington Post newspaper article dated March 30, 1969, entitled "Military Influence Deplored," as urging at a conference on Military Budget and National Priorities, the dismantling of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Department and the National Security Agency within the next decade as the only sure way of reversing the "national security state"

According to a press release by U.S. Representative Robert W. Kastenmeier, Mr. Raskin also served as a group secretary for the "Liberal Papers," a collection of essays written by more than a dozen professors for a number of Democratic Congressmen, made public early in 1962. Among other things, the essays urged the United States to allow Russia to plug into this country's warning defense system (DEW); recognize and admit to the United Nations Communist East Germany, Red China, North Korea, and North Vietnam; unilaterally abandon nuclear tests; break up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO); abandon Berlin and neutralize Central Europe under terms proposed by Communist Poland.

b7C

In addition, a source advised on April 18, 1970, that Raskin was one of the speakers at a convention of Federal Employees For Peace, Equality, and Priorities held in WDC. Raskin stated in part that such Government agencies as the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Secret Service, intelligence services of other Government agencies, and the military should be done away with in that order. He labeled these agencies as un-American. He stated that the capitalistic system in the United States is causing imperialism and aggression in other parts of the world, and that Federal employees should organize to encourage the Government to change these policies and to do away with the above-mentioned agencies.

Richard Jackson Barnett

publicly described as, A. B. Harvard University, L. L. B., Harvard Law School; formerly an official of the Department of State and the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and Fellow of the Russian Research Center at Harvard University.

"The Examiner", a former WDC newspaper dated September 28 through October 1, 1967, page six, contains an article entitled "Another View of the 'think factory'." The article states in part that Richard Barnett, Co-director of the IPS, stated that the work of the Institute and its Fellows is completely independent. Government money is not accepted in any form, "Our hope is to develop a group of social entrepreneurs who can develop solutions to problems, prove their merits, and put them into action."

The Guardian newspaper dated March 16, 1968, page three, listed Richard J. Barnett as one of the sponsors of the New University Conference (NUC).

Among the publicly stated aims of the NUC are: unite faculty, graduate students and movement intellectuals, end the isolation which afflicts so many radicals, support radical scholarship and research, support the radicals now challenging the doctrines of the university establishment, expose university collaboration in war research and social manipulation, assist radicals in obtaining university positions and to provide defense support against the inevitable attacks of McCarthyites.

Barnet has been identified in the "Washington Post" newspaper, November 19, 1969, page C-5, as having been present in Hanoi, North Vietnam, at the time of the November 15th Peace Demonstration in WDC. Barnett was reported by the North Vietnamese to have said at a rally in Hanoi that the Vietnamese are fighting "against the same aggressors that we will continue to fight in our country." Barnet denied making this statement.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The "Washington Post" newspaper dated October 12, 1969, page G-1, contained an article entitled "Report Urges Revolution in Television Ownership". The article states in part that "A privately-financed report produced by the Institute for Policy Studies and financed by the Stern Family Fund is entitled 'Television Today: The End of Communication and the Death of Community!'" The introduction to this report was written by Barnet and the report itself urges that control over television stations be placed in the hands of the public, in the form of local groups and communities. The report warns that if changes are not brought about by Government regulators or the industry, the right of regulation will more and more be assumed by local groups in the form of sit-ins, court challenges and confrontation tactics.

The "Washington Post" newspaper dated November 13, 1969, contains an article entitled "Broadcast Puts Author Barnet at Hanoi Talks." The article stated in part that Richard J. Barnet is on the advisory board of the newly formed news agency named Dispatch, formed to provide "in-depth reporting on important issues and events for national newspapers and the collegiate press." The Dispatch News Service is described publicly as the small news agency, for which Seymour M. Hersch wrote a story concerning Lieutenant William L. Caley, Jr. and his "premeditated murder" of 109 South Vietnamese villagers during combat March 16, 1968.

Barnet wrote an article entitled "View from Hanoi" which appeared in the WDC hippie-type newspaper "The Quicksilver Times", page nine, dated December 8 to 18, 1969. The article states in part:

"After a week of intensive discussions in Hanoi with Premier Pham Van Dong and other leaders it is clear to me that North Vietnam needs and wants a political settlement. I arrived in Hanoi a few days after President Nixon's November 3 speech as a guest of the Vietnamese Jurists Association. The invitation had come to me because I had worked with the Lawyers Committee on American Policy Towards Vietnam, a group of lawyers who have challenged the legal basis of U.S. Vietnam policy.

"The November 3 Nixon speech, Premier Pham Van Dong told me, was a 'brazen challenge'. He and other leaders understand that Vietnamization is a strategy designed to make credible a U.S. involvement in South Vietnam of indefinite duration.

"While the Hanoi leadership believes that they are more than holding their own on the battle field, they see two favorable political trends. (1) The rising opposition to the war in the United States and (2) the deteriorating political strength of the Saigon government."

The article states further Hess would assist a Black Panther, an SDS, Weatherman or any activist he believes in. At forty-seven, Hess is an all-out New Left "anarchist".

"No petty doubts seem to trouble Karl Hess. The New Left direction seems clear enough to him - seceding, creating voluntary communities, resisting fat corporate monopolies, resisting 'outside' government control."

The IPS domestic policy calls for "community control through the device of neighborhood corporations". IPS Fellow Milton Kotler has set forth the following remarks regarding community control.

"Riots," wrote Mr. Kotler, "reflect the formation of a new local community power in combat with the established power . . . Unless existing established federal, state, and municipal governments transfer a proper portion of their authority in Negro communities, today's domestic warfare will grow." Kotler also advised that these neighborhood cooperatives must receive financial assistance from the federal government.

Kotler also has stated regarding the neighborhood cooperative: "It is necessary for the corporation both to have the power to tax its residents and to be able to dispose of its territory. This means the governmental power of eminent domain." He says it would be reasonable for the corporation "to control prices, rents, licensing and banking." Further, he would like communities to govern themselves based on custom rather than outside laws. Kotler states further: "The neighborhood organization must be prepared to defend gains in jurisdiction by the threat of war to any who would endeavor to deny these gains."

VI. Recent IPS Activities

A. Counter Institutions

MEMBER OF SUBJECT ORGANIZATION

In view of the success of IPS in developing and implementing theories, its present studies and projects for the future take on added significance. One plan is to set up a network of institutes like IPS all over the country to serve as counter-institutions to established ones." Gar Alperovitz and Christopher Jencks, both IPS Fellows, have launched one at Cambridge, Massachusetts. Mass,

MEMBER OF SUBJECT ORGANIZATION

("Barron's" National Business and Financial Weekly magazine dated 10/6/69.)

A source advised that the IPS has provided sums of money in the thousands of dollars to the Center for the Study of Public Policy, Cambridge, Massachusetts, which appears to be identical to the above.

[redacted] says IPS also is discussing the possibility of setting up one in the South.

Recently a source advised that the IPS has sent several thousand dollars to the Institute for Southern Studies in Atlanta, Georgia. GA.

B. IPS New Left Activities

Public source material has stated that IPS Fellow, Arthur Waskow, was one of the leaders of the NMC and has with the last year denounced the NMC as not being aggressive enough. Waskow, with New Left leader Lennie Davis, have advocated greater civil disobedience to obtain their demands from the government. Public sources also have stated that Richard Barnet, IPS Co-director, was a founder of the Dispatch News Service, which is given credit for releasing the My Lai Massacre story to the public.

The WDC "Committee to Defend the Chicago Conspiracy 7" defendants was according to public source material comprised of several IPS associates. This Committee, in addition to soliciting support for Dave Dellinger, [redacted] Jerry Rubin, et al, was responsible for organizing the "TDA" demonstration in WDC which resulted in a march on Attorney General Mitchell's residence at the Watergate Apartments and an ensuing violent confrontation with the police.

C. Association with the BPP

In an article entitled "Strikers Rally Today", it is stated in part that "GW activist will call for a student strike at a rally today. The demands are: End repression of black people, the Black Panther Party and the New Haven Nine; withdraw all U.S. troops from Southeast Asia; end University complicity with the war machine." Among the speakers were two IPS Associates, Arthur Waskow and Karl Hess.

("The Hatchet", a George Washington University student newspaper, page 1, 5/4/70)

A reliable source advised that various individuals of the IPS are in contact with the BPP Office, WDC, for a variety of reasons.

D. The Fontenay Corporation

James Paul Warburg (deceased) has been publicly described as a Trustee of the IPS and connected with the Fontenay Corporation.

A letter from a source regarding James Paul Warburg, dated June 27, 1946, stated that a file of a Government agency stated that Warburg, formerly of the Office of War Information, New York City, was generally regarded by informed circles to be a fellow-traveler, if not an outright Communist. The file dated September 20, 1944, and May 26, 1945, indicated Warburg has continued to follow the Communist Party line since he left the Office of War Information.

B. IPS's Research of Industrial Security Operations

On August 21, 1970, a source of information from the Granite City Steel Company, Granite City, Illinois, advised this Bureau as follows:

"Gentlemen:

"The attached letter was received in the mail today. Perhaps the times we live in have made me superconscious of our Nation's security, but the letter sounds a little shady to me.

(WF T-13, 8/21/70) ~~✓~~ 4

The letter to which the source is referring was typed with an IPS letterhead, dated August 17, 1970, and [redacted] The letter was addressed to Granite City Steel, Public Relations Department, Granite City, Illinois. It stated as follows:

"Dear Sirs:

"I am doing a study of the problems of industrial security. As a starting point I would appreciate any written materials which you might have concerning this question including a biographical resume of the person or persons in charge of your security program. Thank you very much."

Regarding the above-letter, an article entitled "Left's Think-Tank Launches Campaign Against Security Forces" in "Combat" magazine, Volume 2, Number 19, dated October 1, 1970, page two, states in part: "In mid-August Raskin sent 'a copy of the above-letter' to the public relations department of 500 American companies. PR men habitually respond to such inquiries without asking questions themselves. Contacted by "Combat" Raskin said he was doing the research for a book which would show 'the class background and educational background of the men who head various programs, who are part of the business elite.' He said one of his interests was to find out what happened to ex-military officers and ex-FBI Agents. Most American firms will not conceal the background of their security managers, but when a man who in the past has attacked national security programs (e.g., nuclear testing, skybolt missiles, et cetera) tries to compile a filing cabinet of dossiers on the men who guard the country's industrial plants, security agents are suspicious. Not suspicious enough though. Raskin told 'Combat' that he has received more than 200 replies."

"Combat" is a newsletter published by National Review, Incorporated, and is described as a newsletter that "keeps you informed about the revolutionary struggle in America today."

C. Researching Government Intelligence Operations

Along these lines a source who is in a position to furnish reliable information advised that IPS "researchers" made a request of the Office of Public Safety (OPS), Agency for International Development (AID) in February of 1969. The IPS "researchers" demanded that access be granted immediately to the files to obtain the following data: Records about the establishment of the International Police Academy in WDC; records from 1954 to the present about OPS students who have been trained in the United States or at other AID sponsored institutions, their rank and position in international security forces at the time of their training and at present; syllabi from 1963 to the present of the International Police Academy programs, both general and specialized courses including the names of forces personnel and of similar records from 1954-1963 of the International Police Academy. Other data of a sensitive nature was also requested.

STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Students for a Democratic Society, commonly known as SDS, came into existence at a founding convention held during June, 1962, at Port Huron, Michigan. From an initial posture of "participatory democracy," Marxist-Leninist ideology of various shadings became predominant during 1968-1969 with debate centering on how best to create a revolutionary youth movement. SDS moved from involvement in the civil rights struggle to an anti-Vietnam war position to advocacy of a militant anti-imperialist line linking up the oppressed peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America with the black liberation movement in the United States. All major factions within SDS embrace Marxism-Leninism and identify internationally with China, Cuba and North Vietnam as countries leading the worldwide struggles against the United States. However, the Soviet Union was regarded as imperialist and with the Communist Party, United States of America, "revisionist" in nature.

SDS operated under a national constitution which called for an annual National Convention (NC) and quarterly National Council meetings wherein programs were initiated and debated. Three national officers were elected annually with a National Interim Committee to run the organization. Regional offices and college chapters elected delegates to the national meetings but each functioned independently on local matters. Its official publication "Fire" (formerly "New Left Notes") last appeared in December, 1969.

Internal factionalism of serious proportions developed during 1968 - 1969 and the following three factions evolved as a result of a split at the June, 1969, NC: Weatherman, Worker Student Alliance (WSA), and Revolutionary Youth Movement (RYM). The effect of the split on SDS chapters throughout the country was divisive. Some aligned with one or the other of the three major factions. Others, unable to identify with any faction, disassociated with SDS completely and changed names.

The SDS national office in recent years was located at 1608 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois. It was closed in February, 1970.

The Weatherman and RYM groups no longer consider themselves associated with SDS, and the WSA group refers to itself as the true SDS.

Weatherman, WSA and RYM are characterized separately.

STUDENT NATIONAL COORDINATING COMMITTEE

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

A source advised the Student National Coordinating Committee (SNCC), formerly known as the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, is a nonmembership organization founded in 1960 during the civil rights movement in the South.

Under the leadership of Stokely Carmichael, who was National Chairman during the period of 1966 - 1967, SNCC evolved from a civil rights oriented group into a black revolutionary organization.

A publication entitled "1967 High Tide of Black Resistance" indicates the year 1967 was considered by SNCC as a historic milestone for the liberation of the black people in the United States. The publication declared that "liberation will come only when there is final destruction of this mad octopus - the capitalistic system of the United States and all its life-sucking tentacles of exploitation and racism that choke the people of Africa, Asia and Latin America."

A second source advised that in April, 1969, SNCC moved its national headquarters from Atlanta, Georgia, to New York City, where it is presently located at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 336 West 20th Street, New York City.

H. Rap Brown announced at a press conference in New York City on July 22, 1969, that he had been elected Chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. He announced that the organization was dropping the word "Nonviolent" from its title, and would be known as the Student National Coordinating Committee. Brown, at that time, stated the use of force is necessary in obtaining revolutionary goals.

A Federal warrant was issued for Brown on May 4, 1970, at Baltimore, Maryland, charging him with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for arson, inciting a riot and failure to appear (Title 18, United States Code, Section 1073).

A third source advised that as of May, 1970, SNCC has secured a lease on premises in Augusta, Georgia, which SNCC intends to convert into a "coffeehouse" for GIs from nearby Fort Gordon, Georgia, to disseminate antiestablishment propaganda.

SNCC also has in the planning stage an Agricultural Reform Program for black tenant farmers and the resumption of classes at the H. Rap Brown Liberation School in Atlanta, Georgia.

BLACK PANTHER PARTY (BPP), also known as
Black Panther Party for Self Defense

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~
According to the official newspaper of the BPP, the BPP was started during December 1966, in Oakland, California, to organize black people so they can take control of the life, politics, and the destiny of the black community. It was organized by BOBBY G. SEALE, BPP Chairman, and HUEY P. NEWTON, Minister of Defense, BPP.

The official newspaper, called "The Black Panther," regularly states that the BPP advocates the use of guns and guerrilla tactics in its revolutionary program to end oppression of the black people. Residents of the black community are urged to arm themselves against the police who are consistently referred to as "pigs" who should be killed.

The newspaper, in its issue of September 7, 1968, had an article by the then Minister of Education, GEORGE MURRAY. This article ended with the following:

"Black men. Black people, colored persons of America, revolt everywhere! Arm yourselves. The only culture worth keeping is revolutionary culture. Change. Freedom everywhere. Dynamite! Black power. Use the gun. Kill the pigs everywhere."

The BPP newspaper, issue of October 5, 1968, had an article introduced with the following statement: "We will not dissent from American government. We will overthrow it."

DAVID HILLIARD, Chief of Staff, BPP, in a speech at the San Francisco Polo Field on November 15, 1969, said "We will kill Richard Nixon."

DAVID HILLIARD, in the "New York Times," issue of December 13, 1969, was quoted as follows: "We advocate the very direct overthrow of the government by way of force and violence."

In the issue of April 25, 1970, the BPP newspaper had an article by Minister of Culture EMORY DOUGLAS as follows:

"The only way to make this racist US government administer justice to the people it is oppressing; is...by taking up arms against this government, killing the officials, until the reactionary forces...are dead, and those that are left turn their weapons on their superiors, thereby passing revolutionary judgement against the number one enemy of all mankind, the racist U.S. government."

The BPP Headquarters is located at 1046 Peralta Street, Oakland, California. Branches of the BPP, and Committees to Combat Fascism, under control of the BPP, have been established in various locations in the USA.

SOUTHERN STUDENT ORGANIZING COMMITTEE (SSOC)

On November 1, 1966, a first source advised that the Southern Student Organizing Committee (SSOC) was formed on the weekend of April 3-5, 1964, to stimulate activity of Southern student groups in areas of civil rights, peace, academic freedom, civil liberties, capital punishment, and unemployment. Originally, it was to be a white counterpart of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). It has agreed to work with similar interested groups such as SNCC and Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc. (SCEF). SSOC is a fraternal affiliate of the SDS.

Beginning in the Fall of 1966, SSOC became a membership organization and embarked on a campaign to form local chapters on various college campuses throughout the South. SSOC publishes, October through May each year, a publication, "New South Student," which according to the above source has increasingly espoused and defended the pro-Communist and anti-United States position on domestic and foreign policy.

On July 2, 1968, a second source advised that SSOC continues to be headquartered at 1703 Portland Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee, and continues to defend and espouse the pro-Communist and anti-United States position with particular emphasis on attacking United States policy in Vietnam and emphasis on attacking the Selective Service System. Source two noted that [redacted] in the Summer of 1967 traveled to Prague, Czechoslovakia, where he met with representatives of the National Liberation Front (NLF) and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (DRV), and that [redacted] traveled to Cuba in the Summer of 1967 and February, 1968, respectively.

By letter dated April 26, 1968, on SSOC letterhead mailed to the general SSOC membership over the signature of [redacted] it was announced that as a step toward close relations with the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and better communications with the movement nationally, SSOC and SDS have worked out an exchange of the "New South Student" and the "New Left Notes," and that SDS and SSOC were exchanging contact lists of their respective memberships for this exchange.

THE SCOTT REPORT

*Radicalizing The State Department

By PAUL SCOTT

EXP. PROC.

WASHINGTON — The State Department's Foreign Service Institute is taking President Nixon's advocacy of a "New American Revolution" in a way that might surprise him.

Its officials have arranged for strategists of the far-Left Institute of Policy Studies to lecture State Department personnel on subjects ranging from "The American Anarchist Tradition" to "The International Outlook Of The New Left."

The first of these "brain-washing" sessions took place last week as part of a Foreign Service Institute seminar on "The New Left — An International Overview."

Missing from the seminar's schedule of speakers were any experts on the New Left from the Justice Department, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Central Intelligence Agency, or Congressional committees.

The panel's four days of meetings were loaded with lecturers known for their own promotion of militant anti-war groups opposing the Nixon Administration's Vietnam policy and favoring radical changes in our present system of government. Only two pro-Administration speakers were invited for "window dressing."

Scheduled to speak for the revolution advocating Institute of Policy Studies (IPS) are Richard J. Barnett, co-director of the "Think Tank" group, and Karl Hess, one-time speech writer for Senator Barry Goldwater and now an advocate of doing away with all government.

Barnett served in the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency during the Kennedy Administration. He is now one of IPS's chief strategists supporting revolutionaries both in the streets and inside government.

In 1969, Barnett traveled to Hanoi and met with Government-sponsored Communist anti-U.S. groups and coordinated plans for anti-war actions against U.S. defense of South Vietnam.

How much, if any, influence the two IPS officials had on Foreign Service Institute officials to set up the seminar isn't known. However, sources from within the IPS report that its leaders have been discussing privately for weeks ways to radicalize State Department personnel. One of their objectives is to encourage Foreign Service officials to openly oppose the Administration's Vietnam policy.

LIFTING THE LID

Organized here eight years ago, the Institute of Policy Studies is considered to be one of the most influential far-Left operations in the United States. It receives and spends more than a half-million dollars a year operating its Washington headquarters and supporting key leaders in the anti-war, revolutionary movements in the country.

Financing has come from the Edgar Stern family fund, the Ford Foundation, Field Foundation, Samuel Rubin Foundation, Irving Lauck, the Institute for International Order, and the "Fontaney Corp.," through the generosity of late James P. Warburg, who was an IPS trustee until his death in 1969.

Marcus Raskin, a co-director of IPS, served as the coordinator of the LIBERAL PAPERS, a collection of radical essays, published in 1962. These writings urged admission to the United Nations for East Germany, China, North Korea, and Vietnam. They also urged the United States to unilaterally abandon all nuclear tests, break up NATO, and neutralize Central Europe under terms proposed by Communist Poland.

One of IPS's most active "fellows" is Dr. Arthur I. Waskow. The radical anti-war leader was one of the IPS-supported revolutionaries that met last June in Milwaukee to plan the coming April-May demonstrations designed to disrupt Washington. Since its inception, IPS has tried to disarm the United States and fought military defense through "seminars," chiefly for Liberal members of Congress and their assistants. The "Think Tank" also trained bright young college graduates to take positions on Congressional staffs and Government agencies to push IPS's radical policies.

OPENING THE DOOR

The Foreign Service Institute's open invitation for the IPS strategists to lecture to State Department personnel opens vast revolutionary possibilities for the far-Left group.

For the first time, IPS officials have received the official blessing of the State Department to "sell" their kind of radical Socialist revolution to its employees, on Government property, and during time paid for by American taxpayers.

Unless countermanded by the White House, the State Department action raises some serious questions about the kind of "New American Revolution" President Nixon is seeking.

The appearance of the IPS radicals also raises the question of whether President Nixon is being kept fully informed on information gathered on the IPS by the Justice Department, Internal Revenue Service, and Congressional committees.

Their files show that the IPS has channeled its funds and talents into building the anti-war movement and helping leaders of some of the most violent demonstrations and protests since 1963.

Note: A Justice Department report reveals that Cherif Guellal, former Algerian Ambassador to the United States, is now a "Fellow" on the IPS staff. Although Algeria broke off diplomatic relations with the United States in 1967, the State Department has permitted Guellal to remain in the United States at the urging of IPS.

FEAR, THE

By FR. F.G. CONNOLLY

Does fear have a place in the Christian life? Absolutely, says the author, if it has the proper motivations. We begin a series of five articles by Fr. Connolly on the virtue of fear — a virtue which lately has not received much attention from theologians to say nothing of ordinary Christians.

I.

On March 3rd, 1949, Pope Pius XII, speaking to a group of Lenten preachers of the Diocese of Rome, made this urgent appeal: "It is sorrowful to see many today — and among them many Catholics — living as though their only aim in life is the thought of earthly things. Continuous, though abiding in films and in films of the Church. The for the for

Pope Paul VI . . .

What The Gospels Reveal About Christ

At his general audience on February 10th, Pope Paul turned to the Gospel in his continuing teaching on the person and nature of Christ. The Holy Father, concluding his address, reminded his listeners of the three early Councils which provided the infallible, dogmatic formulae about the Church's belief in Christ. He then declared: "We end here, resolving to live in ourselves that mystery of the Incarnation into which we have been led by baptism and faith. . . ."

Ever since Christmas we have set out to offer our visitors to these familiar weekly conversations — as though more out of curiosity than for the purpose of study — some ideas about Jesus, what He looked like, as a human being, a moral person.

There is still a great deal that could be said, but we have already gone a long way if we see and feel the fascination of this theme. This is why we return to it again. We want to offer you two lines of thought by way of a summing up. We exhort each of you to look into your Christian consciences, which have been schooled in our Catholic Faith, and search for the answers to two questions: Who was Jesus?

that they exceed all our measurements, ought to attract, not disconcert us. So let us turn our attention this time to that first stimulating question: Who was Jesus?

"WHO IS JESUS?"

Let us begin by noting at once that this question lies at the very heart of the Gospel. We might say that the story which the Gospel tells is woven entirely around this question of Jesus' real identity: Who is Jesus? "Is He not the carpenter's son?" (Mt. 13, 55) That is how public opinion viewed Him. "Is this not the son of Mary?" (Mk. 6, 3) — those who were better informed knew something about His

Handwritten notation appears on an article which criticizes the State Department for allowing representatives of the Institute of Policy Studies to lecture at the State Department's Foreign Service Institute. The Institute of Policy Studies is the subject of a current Security Matter--Miscellaneous investigation. PURPOSE:

To recommend that we send attached memorandum to Internal Revenue Service requesting income tax returns on IPS and on [redacted] Richard Jackson Barnet, [redacted] IPS, for years 1963 (when IPS was founded) through 1969.

BACKGROUND:

IPS has been characterized as the "Think Factory" of the New Left which helps train extremists who incite violence and whose educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation. It is a nonprofit, nontaxable organization which studies Government policies and offers alternative policies. It exerts considerable influence through contacts with educators, Congress and labor [redacted] Barnet [redacted] in IPS. IPS receives its funds from private foundations. In view of their New Left activity, additional investigation is warranted to determine the sources of income and assets of IPS, [redacted] Barnet. If you approve, attached memorandum should be returned to the Domestic Intelligence Division so that these income tax returns can be obtained and reviewed.

RECOMMENDATION:

That attached memorandum be approved requesting income tax returns of IPS, Barnet [redacted] for 1963 through 1969.

The representative of the FBI who interviewed [redacted] on 12/7/70 was SA [redacted]

On 4/26/71, [redacted] Wells Fargo Bank, San Francisco, California, was contacted by SA [redacted] and asked if the policy of his bank would permit providing information concerning the account of an organization under investigation by the FBI. After consulting with the Head Cashier of the bank, [redacted] advised he could not provide any information concerning an account without a subpoena duces tecum.

It should be noted as a matter of administrative interest that during a telephonic pretext of the BAI in 9/70, it was learned that [redacted] who was previously reported to be associated with the BAI, as set out in first referenced report, had only been associated with the BAI on one event in 4/70, had no current connection with the BAI, and was living and working [redacted]

Inasmuch as investigation has failed to determine any affiliation between the IPS and the BAI, investigation of the IPS at San Francisco is being placed in a closed status. San Francisco will continue to follow the activities of the BAI, and in the event that such an affiliation is subsequently established, this investigation will be reopened.

On November 20, 1970, and again on January 15, 1971, [redacted] was interviewed by a representative of the FBI under a suitable pretext. [redacted] stated on both occasions that the BAI was not the West Coast Office of the IPS, nor is it in any way connected with IPS. He advised that he knew [redacted] and through him had obtained two subcontracts which required work in the San Francisco area. These subcontracts dealt primarily with obtaining figures regarding trade between the West Coast and Far Eastern Countries. [redacted] stated that as far as he knew, the IPS was a nonprofit educational program that accepts contracts from anyone to do research. [redacted] stated that he knew of no projects conducted by the IPS other than the two which the BAI participated in under contract.

b7C

On December 7, 1970, a representative of the FBI interviewed [redacted] BAI, at 9 Sutter Street, Room 300, San Francisco, which is the office of the BAI. No other organization was listed on BAI's door or on its stationery. [redacted] appeared to work in one room of the office space, and two other rooms appeared to be used for research by two white males and one white female, all of whom were in their early 20s. [redacted] was reluctant to discuss anything with the FBI representative.

[redacted] attended a Students For A Democratic Society (SDS) conference here at Richmond, California, on August 2, 1969.

[SF T-1, 8/29/69.] (U)

A characterization of the SDS is contained in the Appendix.

[redacted] appeared on a panel discussion in New York City to discuss the problems of pollution; and in reference to Consolidated Edison, a New York utility, [redacted] said that if Consolidated Edison did not take steps to solve pollution problems, the only alternative would be to blow up their plant.

STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Students for a Democratic Society, commonly known as SDS, came into existence at a founding convention held during June, 1962, at Port Huron, Michigan. From an initial posture of "participatory democracy," Marxist-Leninist ideology of various shadings became predominant during 1968-1969 with debate centering on how best to create a revolutionary youth movement. SDS moved from involvement in the civil rights struggle to an anti-Vietnam war position to advocacy of a militant anti-imperialist line linking up the oppressed peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America with the black liberation movement in the United States. All major factions within SDS embrace Marxism-Leninism and identify internationally with China, Cuba and North Vietnam as countries leading the worldwide struggles against the United States. However, the Soviet Union was regarded as imperialist and with the Communist Party, United States of America, "revisionist" in nature.

SDS operated under a national constitution which called for an annual National Convention (NC) and quarterly National Council meetings wherein programs were initiated and debated. Three national officers were elected annually with a National Interim Committee to run the organization. Regional offices and college chapters elected delegates to the national meetings but each functioned independently on local matters. Its official publication "Fire" (formerly "New Left Notes") last appeared in December, 1969.

Internal factionalism of serious proportions developed during 1968-1969 and the following three factions evolved as a result of a split at the June, 1969, NC: Weatherman, Worker Student Alliance (WSA), and Revolutionary Youth Movement (RYM). The effect of the split on SDS chapters throughout the country was divisive. Some aligned with one or the other of the three major factions. Others, unable to identify with any faction, disassociated with SDS completely and changed names.

The SDS national office in recent years was located at 1608 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois. It was closed in February, 1970.

The Weatherman and RYM groups no longer consider themselves associated with SDS, and the WSA group refers to itself as the true SDS.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

"The New York Times" city edition, Tuesday, April 20, 1965, page 27, reported that a new party of "revolutionary socialism" was formally founded on April 18, 1965, under the name of the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) which had been known as the Progressive Labor Movement.

According to the article, "The Progressive Labor Movement was founded in 1962 by MILTON ROSEN and MORTIMER SCHEER after they were expelled from the Communist Party of the United States for assertedly following the Chinese Communist line."

A source advised on June 3, 1968, that the PLP held its Second National Convention in New York City, May 31 to June 2, 1968, at which time the PLP reasserted its objective of the establishment of a militant working class movement based on Marxism-Leninism.

The source also advised that at the Second National Convention MILTON ROSEN was unanimously re-elected National Chairman of the PLP and [REDACTED] to lead the PLP until the next convention.

The PLP publishes "Progressive Labor," a bimonthly magazine, and "Challenge-Desafio," a monthly newspaper.

Source advised on May 25, 1970, that the PLP utilizes an address of General Post Office Box 808, Brooklyn, New York, and also utilizes an office in Room 617, 1 Union Square West, New York, New York.

REVOLUTIONARY YOUTH MOVEMENT

A source advised that the Revolutionary Youth Movement II (RYM II) faction of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) held a national conference at Atlanta, Georgia, from November 26 to 30, 1969. At this conference it was decided to form a new organization to be known as Revolutionary Youth Movement (RYM), characterized as a mass anti-imperialist youth organization, said organization being proposed as separate and distinct in form and content from SDS. The "Principles of Unity" adopted by the conference included a struggle against white supremacy and male supremacy; fights against imperialism, anticommunism, fascism and oppression of youth; and support of the right of self-determination of all "oppressed nations," also support of the right of all "oppressed and exploited" peoples "to armed self-defense." It was agreed that RYM would not be a Marxist-Leninist organization; however, source said this was decided in order to indicate an organization broad enough in form to be acceptable to everyone. A temporary National Steering Committee (NSC) made up of eight females and two males was elected to govern RYM until national officers could be elected during the Spring of 1970.

RYM publications have listed the RYM National Office (NO) at Post Office Box 5421 and Post Office Box 77012 C, both Atlanta, Georgia, and a second source has advised that the NO has no office space but would probably be considered as located at Apartment 27, 1067 Alta Avenue, Northeast, Atlanta.

Second source advised that women dominated the founding conference and have continued to dominate NSC meetings to the point that "women's liberation" has apparently become the RYM's principal issue - also that RYM's poor financial condition has resulted in its failure to publish a paper. During early 1970, RYM has decided to cater to the working class rather than youth, since the potential for social revolution lies in workers.

A third source has stated that it was decided at the March, 1970, NSC meeting that RYM women had decided the organization will be molded into a "working class, Marxist-Leninist, revolutionary, anti-imperialist, pro-black nationalist, people's women's liberation organization."

APPENDIX~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

WEATHERMAN

Initially called the "Action Faction," Weatherman came into being immediately before the June, 1969 Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) National Convention (NC). At this NC Weatherman won all three national officer positions and a majority of the National Interim Committee as well. Subsequently, they took over the SDS National Office (NO) in Chicago, and controlled its funds, paper and national records. Although internal struggle existed until late 1969, Weatherman for all major purposes controlled SDS nationally from June, 1969, until its NO closed in February, 1970. At this time it no longer considered itself part of SDS.

The term Weatherman emerged from an ideological paper prepared by its leaders entitled, "You Don't Need a Weatherman to Know Which Way the Wind Blows," ("New Left Notes," June 18, 1969). This statement outlined the basic stance of Weatherman: Marxist-Leninist in content but with strong advocacy that action not theory would bring about revolution in the United States. This posture was complemented with an international identification to the Cuban revolution and CASTRO's statement that the duty of a revolutionary is to make revolution.

During October, 1969, Weatherman riots in Chicago resulted in more than 260 arrests for mob action and related charges. A program of armed struggle was finalized during a December, 1969, "War Council" wherein terrorist tactics and political assassination were contemplated. The basic strength of Weatherman was then revealed to be some 300-350 nationally and geographically apportioned to the Midwest, New York, and some Northwest.

As its rhetoric of violence escalated, Weatherman leaders increasingly discussed the necessity of an underground operation wherein more than 90 percent of the organization would be submerged; "affinity groups" of three - five members would function independently. In February, 1970, Weatherman leaders announced a program of "strategic sabotage" with police and military installations as primary targets.

In February, 1970, Weatherman abandoned the SDS NO, 1608 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois, and throughout the country entered an underground status.

WORKER STUDENT ALLIANCE/PROGRESSIVE LABOR PARTY

A source advised during August, 1969, that at the National Convention (NC) of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) held in Chicago, Illinois, during June, 1969, a split arose between the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) and the National Office (NO), the NO becoming known as the Weatherman faction. The PLP faction drew the largest support among those in attendance at the NO.

Source further advised that during late Summer, 1969, the PLP faction of SDS established its National Headquarters (NH) on the second floor of a loft-type building at 173-A Massachusetts Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts. The campaign on which the PLP faction centered was to build a worker student alliance or a campus worker student alliance. Thus, they adopted the names of Worker Student Alliance (WSA) or Campus Worker Student Alliance.

A second source advised during January, 1970, that within the SDS, the WSA is a caucus of which the PLP constitutes the leadership.

A third source advised during July, 1970, that during demonstrations staged in the Boston area during the Spring and Summer of 1970 by the NH, the main theme of previous demonstrations staged by the NH shifted from protestations of the Vietnam War and other United States foreign policy matters to attacking domestic issues such as racism and unemployment and demonstrating support of the "workers' struggle."

utilizing proxies, publicly identified themselves as "Southern Africa Task Force of United Presbyterian Church", urged stock holders' support to investigate Gulf involvement in Portuguese Africa. They alleged the Gulf Oil Corporation helps maintain colonial oppression of blacks in Africa, and that its activities may have an oppressive affect on human rights and liberty. During the nomination period for election to the Gulf Board of Directors, it was alleged Gulf has no minority representation on its Board of Directors, and the group nominated several Negroes for positions on the Board, according to [redacted]. It was also noted that two persons had to be forcibly removed from the meeting after being ruled out of order by the chairman when they insisted on pursuing a discussion concerning Gulf supporting an alleged Portuguese dictatorship in Angola which results in alleged oppression and exploitation of Africans, and who declined to relinquish the microphone.

Re Bureau letter dated 4/27/71 and WFO LHM dated 2/19/71.

WFO believes that the Institute for Policy Studies (IPS) is the heart, brains and driving force behind the New Left movement in this country. IPS has formulated five year plans to radicalize the thinking of the American public, concentrating on our young people. Seventeen telephone lines service IPS and it is understood that IPS is in contact with every college in the country. There has also been some indication that IPS may have contributed financially to the recent May Day demonstrations in Washington, D.C., which were in sore financial trouble. It also appears that IPS may have an illegal arm as well as a legal one. WFO needs a discreet lookout to determine if the above assessment is correct and to conduct an in depth survey of IPS.

Lookout possibilities are almost non existent in the neighborhood of IPS due to the fact that it is zoned for professional organizations and all appropriate space is rented, mostly by law firms. It is agreed that $375 per month is a high rent to pay for a lookout represents: the most discreet and best coverage of IPS. WFO does not intend to confine this investigation to a lookout operation, but it is believed the investigation should begin there. With better coverage of IPS, it is expected that WFO will be in a position to ascertain New Left activities long in advance as well as possible illegal IPS involvement. The Bureau is requested to reconsider WFO's proposed rental of the lookout premises

PURPOSE:

To request authority for WFO to expend $375 per month for a 90-day period for the rental of space for an observation post on the Institute for Policy Studies (IPS).

BACKGROUND:

IPS has been characterized as the "Think Factory" of the New Left which helps train extremists who incite violence and whose educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation. Continued investigation of IPS as a New Left subversive organization was recommended as was an expansion of this investigation beyond contacts with established sources in January, 1971. This was approved by the Director.

IPS leaders are all on Priority I of the Security Index and are involved in the activities of several other New Left groups.

research on security procedures used by American industries, travel to North Vietnam and conferences with North Vietnamese officials, support of disruptive demonstrations and advocacy of abolition of the FBI, Secret Service, and other Government intelligence agencies.

Persons suspected of involvement in two embassy bombings in Washington, D. C., in 1970 have closely associated with IPS. Additionally, several Bureau fugitives who are New Left activists have apparently had IPS contacts. Two of these are directly involved in a bank robbery and murder and the third is a Weatherman fugitive under indictment for violation of antiriot laws.

Memorandum to Mr. C. D. Brennan
Re: Institute for Policy Studies (IPS) 1520 New Hampshire Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C.
100-447935

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Information received recently indicates [redacted]

[redacted] is very friendly with persons associated with IPS. Additionally, it has been reported that IPS is well along the way to having a book published on the Vietnam study documents.

[redacted] recent militant demonstrations in Washington, D. C., said in January, 1971, that IPS had donated $1,000 to him. IPS officials also reportedly are part of a message network to Paris and North Vietnam according to statements made by [redacted] in February, 1971.

OBSERVATIONS:

IPS apparently exercises considerable influence in the New Left movement and may have as its goal the destruction of the U.S. Government, as presently constituted, by other than lawful means.

Informant coverage of IPS to date has provided information of considerable value but sources have not been able to penetrate the top echelon where planning and strategy take place. It is felt that employment of an observation post to identify visitors to IPS would enable WFO to target selected individuals who have access to top-level information for development as informants. q

RECOMMENDATION:

That attached airtel be sent to WFO authorizing expenditure of $375 per month for rental of lookout space on IPS, for a period of 90 days. X

APRIL 27, 1971

----- (U) -----

[In April, 1971, a source^X advised that persons associated with the Institute for Policy Studies (IPS), Five Forsyth Street, Atlanta, Georgia, were formulating plans to demonstrate against Gulf Oil Corporation at its annual stockholders meeting at Atlanta on April 27, 1971. These plans included infiltration of the stockholders meeting through use of proxies in an effort to cause disruption and confusion within the meeting and possibly conduct a picketing action outside the meeting. (U)

[This source had advised in July, 1970^X that IPS had opened an office at Five Forsyth Street in Atlanta and thereafter reported that IPS was allegedly studying the effects of war on the southern economy, that it was conducting research on war-related industries in the South, and that its purpose was to identify war-related industrial contractors in the Atlanta area to determine the extent of the part played by these contractors in what they termed the "military industrial complex". (U)
In February, 1971, this source reported that the Atlanta IPS was affiliated with the IPS headquartered in Washington, D. C., and in Atlanta this group was being referred to as the Institute for Southern Studies (ISS).

Ga.
The Institute for Policy Studies has been characterized in an article by Edith Kermit Roosevelt appearing on page 22 of the September 24, 1967, edition of a former Washington, D. C. weekly newspaper, "The Examiner." She stated in part that the IPS is a Washington-based "Think Factory" which helped train extremists who incite violence in United States cities and whose educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation. Through its conferences and seminars, the IPS asserts a continuing influence on the ideology and tactics of the New Left.

A lengthy article in the April 19, 1971, issue of "The Great Speckled Bird", an Atlanta New Left underground newspaper, purportedly based upon data compiled by the ISS from reports by the "American Committee on Africa" and that "Committee of Returned Volunteers", announced the proposed demonstration against Gulf Oil Corporation to the public and advised that same will commence at 10:00 A. M., April 27, 1971, at the Alliance Theater, 15th and Peachtree Streets, location of the Gulf stockholders meeting. The article indicated the action will be the focus for several groups working against United States-supported racism and colonialism in Africa, and charged that, through its operations in Portuguese colonies in Africa, Gulf is "a principal bulwark and profiteer of the white man's control of Africa". It indicated the Southern Africa Task Force of the United Presbyterian Church, backed by a number of individual and institutional stockholders, has included four proposals on the meeting's agenda, all opposed by Gulf management, which proposals are (1) to establish a committee to examine Gulf's involvement in Portuguese Africa; (2) to disclose Gulf's "charitable gifts"; (3) to enlarge the Board of Directors to represent the interest of people affected by Gulf; and (4) to terminate Gulf's operations in colonial ruled areas. ISS states supporters of the proposals "will be inside and outside the meeting to make sure the issues are dealt with--issues of third world colonialism and racism, of multinational corporations' accountability to human needs.

In April, 1971, a second source advised that a meeting of the Atlanta Student Organization for Black Unity (SOBU) was held at the Atlanta University Complex on April 22, 1971. The primary purpose of this meeting was to generate support for a protest against Gulf Oil Corporation at its annual stockholders meeting in Atlanta. Approximately 25 persons attended this meeting. The discussion concerned Gulf's involvement in oil production in Portuguese Africa and off the coast of Vietnam. ~~(S)~~ (U)

SOBU was formed in 1969 at Greensboro, North Carolina, with the basic aim to initiate, coordinate, and lead a black student movement in the United States. During May, 1969, an organizational convention was held, attended by well-known black militants from the eastern part of the United States.

This second source advised that on April 24, 1971, approximately 20-25 persons met at the Atlanta University Complex to attend an address presented by a representative of Angola who discussed the relationship of Gulf in Angola and with Portugal and gave a brief history of Portugal and its involvement in Angola. During the course of his presentation, he noted that he is in the United States attempting to solicit financial, political and moral support for the citizens of Angola. ~~(S)~~ (U)

This second source further advised that on April 26, 1971, Atlanta SOBU met at the Atlanta University Complex with some 35-55 persons present. This meeting prompted further discussion concerning Gulf and its involvement in Angola. The purpose of this meeting was to further establish support for protest against Gulf and additionally to show a film concerning Angola. The movie projector was not properly functioning, however, and most attendees dispersed without viewing this film. (U)

On April 27, 1971, a third source reported that on the morning of April 27, 1971, approximately 15-25 persons gathered outside the entrance to the Alliance Theater where Gulf was scheduled to conduct its annual stockholders meeting. This group "leafleted" persons attending the stockholders meeting. These leaflets concerned Gulf's presence in Angola which presence was allegedly called racist and supportive of the Portuguese Government to the detriment of Angolans. Those Atlantans recognized as being present and engaged in leafleting were identified as follows:

Gulf Oil Corporation, Houston, Texas, advised on April 27, 1971, that on the same date Gulf Oil held its annual stockholders meeting at the Alliance Theater in Atlanta, Georgia, from 10:30 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. This meeting was described as orderly with only exceptions being two persons forcibly removed from the meeting who were ruled out of order by the chairman and who insisted on pursuing the discussion concerning Gulf supporting alleged Portuguese dictatorship in Angola, which results in oppression and exploitation of Africans, and who declined to relinquish the microphone.

[redacted] further stated that during the course of the meeting a group of persons utilizing proxies publicly identified themselves as "Southern Africa Task Force" of United Presbyterian Church and urged stockholders' support to investigate Gulf involvement in Portuguese Africa, alleging Gulf helps maintain colonial oppression of blacks in Africa and its activities may have an oppressive effect on human rights and liberty. During the nomination period for the election to the Gulf Board of Directors, it was alleged Gulf has no minority representation on the Board of Directors, after which time several Negroes were nominated for the Board including [redacted]

[redacted] Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Atlanta, Georgia. It was indicated that anti-management stockholders, including "Southern Africa Task Force" officially furnished microphone time to address the body concerning issues of interest.

[redacted] External Security Unit, Atlanta Police Department, advised on April 27, 1971, that no incidents of violence or arrests occurred in connection with the Gulf meetings. He further noted that at approximately 10:00 A. M., 20-25 demonstrators gathered near the entrance to the Alliance Theater where they distributed anti-Gulf Oil leaflets. At approximately 10:15 A. M., demonstrators staged a "guerrilla theater" where skits were performed allegedly to show that "Gulf kills" in Africa. Demonstrators remained at the entrance until the conclusion of the stockholders meeting at approximately 12:30 P. M., after which time demonstrators as well as stockholders dispersed.

An article which appeared in the morning edition of the "Atlanta Constitution" dated April 28, 1971, written by Gene Tharpe, Constitution Business Editor, entitled "Gulf Shareholders Veto Protest", is set forth as follows:

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Gulf Shareholders Veto Protest

By GENE THARPE

Constitution Business Editor

The chairman of Gulf Oil Corp. said charges made against it Tuesday during the giant company's annual meeting in Atlanta were "untrue and unrealistic."

Gulf was accused of assisting in the "suppression" of Angolans and "helping kill" them in their "struggle for freedom."

E. D. Brockett, Gulf chairman, denied the charges and others made against the company during the meeting.

An estimated 600 persons attended the meeting in the Alliance Theatre of the Memorial Arts Center. It was the first time Gulf had held its annual meeting here.

Brockett, during his formal speech to the stockholders, said Gulf's consolidated net income for the first quarter rose to $146.2 million or 70 cents per share, up from $139.2 million or 67 cents per share a year ago. For 1970, Gulf's income was down by almost 10 per cent.

Gulf's directors also declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 37½ cents per share payable June 10 to stockholders of record May 7.

Angola is a Portuguese-controlled country in southern Africa where a guerrilla fight for independence has been going on since the early 1960s.

Gulf, the fourth largest oil company, has $130 million invested in oil exploration and production in Angola, and pays taxes and fees to the Angolan government.

Abel Guimarrès, president of the Angolan Student Union of America, said these taxes and fees help support a Portuguese army which is "helping to kill Angolan men, women and children."

Before the meeting, a group of demonstrators marched to the beat of drums outside the center's entrance. During the meeting, two speakers were ejected from the theatre when they refused to yield the floor after being ruled out of order.

The discussion centered on four resolutions of protest which appeared in the proxy statement, and which were sponsored by the Southern Africa Task Force of the United Presbyterian Church.

The resolutions sought:

1. To establish a committee to examine Gulf's involvement in Portuguese Africa;
2. To disclose Gulf's charitable gifts;
3. To enlarge the board of directors to represent the interests of people affected by Gulf;
4. To terminate Gulf's operations in colonial-ruled areas.

About 20 persons, some speaking for themselves but most representing a religious or minority organization, spoke in support of the resolutions.

Josiah Beeman, field director for the Presbyterian group, said Gulf's investment in Angola "contributed to the suppression of desire for self-government by Angolans."

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The Rev. Andrew Young of Atlanta urged Gulf to use its "tremendous economic power" to bring "peaceful change in the world."

Another speaker, who identified himself as an Angolan student attending an American university, said he could not understand why American citizens would permit any Gulf money to be used "to kill any of my people."

"This is 'inconceivable,' he said, when 'all over the world there are tombs of American soldiers who died so others would be free.'"

All four resolutions were defeated, with approximately 170 million shares voted against each one and between 1 and 2 million shares voted for each one.

The Gulf management urged stockholders to defeat the resolutions because they did not represent the best interests of the corporation.

Gulf said its presence in Angola benefited the people by providing jobs and education.

The basic question, Gulf said in a prepared statement, is this:

"Does an American corporation have any right to attempt to intrude in the political affairs of another nation?"

... The officers and directors of Gulf Oil Corp. believe ~~we do not~~ have that right nor should we ever have it."

Several nominations for Gulf's board of directors were made from the floor, including two Africans, Dr. Augustino Neto, president of the Angolan liberation effort, and Amilcar Cabral, an agronomist from Guinea.

Also nominated from the floor was black militant Angela Davis, now awaiting trial in California. She was nominated by a bearded youth who described her as a "beautiful girl."

Miss Davis received more than 15,000 votes, not enough to win. None of the nominees from the floor was elected.

Was Goldwater Wrong on War?

THE FLASH FIRE of interest in the Pentagon Papers is subsiding. The documents have been published by Beacon Books and a cynic in our business might well argue that an issue is journalistically dead once it has had time to travel between the covers of a book — even a guide-line paper-back cover.

There is a feeling, now, that the whole thing was overblown, its importance exaggerated. Polls, as usual, show that a great many of the people have cared enough to figure out what the Pentagon Papers are. Most of the stuff in the Papers was already known or guessed at. The Times probably overstated its case against Johnson. What wonder will it all be in a few days?

This attitude is understandable, but mistaken. The Papers did give a psychic jolt to society, at least to those with political interests. To these are precisely the ones who should have known (in general)

that's what we believed, or wanted to believe. And nothing could be further from the truth. No war was so consciously studied, computerized, scrutinized, controlled.

JOHNSON PROBABLY did not consciously lie in the 1964 campaign — he wanted to avoid war, and thought he could. Still, his rhetoric surfaced men into thinking an Indochina War was out of the question. A vote against Goldwater was a vote against any such war, and would end the nation.

For a whole year the Institute of Policy Studies has been conducting a study of the Vietnam decisions. It will be published in two volumes as "The Planning of the Vietnam War." It uses the Pentagon Papers, but goes beyond them, interviewing many principals in the decision-making process. A portion of the first volume appears in the current New York Review of Books, and should be read very carefully.

The study's editor, Ralph Glavin, shows how President Kennedy reacted to the
